

Hiking in Luxembourg – Mullerthal

The Müllerthal is the most famous hiking region in Luxembourg. The Wolfsschlucht, with its steep cliffs up to 50 meters high, is considered the most spectacular natural monument on the 13.5-kilometer hiking trail E. Those who make their way from Berdorf in the direction of Echternach, the oldest city in Luxembourg, will cross a beautiful stream valley with equally impressive sandstone rock formations.

The Müllerthal in Luxembourg is also called the Little Switzerland of Luxembourg. The Müllerthal Trail is one of the Leading Quality Trails - Best of Europe. This label is awarded by the European Hiking Association. The Müllerthal Trail is also suitable for families with younger children. The cross-border orientation of the trail is attractive. Together with the South Eifel region in Germany, a NaturWanderpark Deluxe was created, which makes cross-border hiking possible on four rock tours.

Photos about hiking in the Mullerthal in Luxembourg

The approximately 112 km long Müllerthal Trail consists of three loops. Berdorf is a good place to start. Surrounded by the Berdorfer Felsen, the place is on a plateau and is an ideal starting point for numerous hikes. The hike leads through a forest and rocky landscape via the Wolfsschlucht to Echternach. Shortly after leaving Berdorf, you come to an amphitheater where millstones used to be quarried, leaving typical traces. Today the amphitheater is used for events. Also on the Huel Lee, the Hohllay, you can clearly see the circular bulges from which millstones were broken for the whole region. Hover your cursor over a photo to see more information.
